Collaboration Series: IT Health Workshops
Bringing together Australia's best to advance healthcare technology.

MARCH 2015

Peter Ganter
Queensland Children's Hospital Project
Queensland Health

David Kempson
Chief Information Officer
UnitingCare Health

Peter gave an overview of the Lady Cilento Children's Hospital program that has a budget of $1.5 billion. He discussed the ICT infrastructure required by the extensive program, and challenges encountered through its planning and implementation.

Following this, David provided insight into UnitingCare Health's newest digital hospital in Hervey Bay. He discussed the crucial incorporation of change management in relation to any program, and how this can be as important, if not more so, than ICT installation.

JULY 2015

Mal Thatcher
Chief Health Information Officer
Queensland Health

Colin McCririck
Chief Technology Officer
Queensland Health

Steven Parrish
CIO, Executive Director Information & Infrastructure
Mater Health Service

David Kempson
Chief Information Officer
UnitingCare Health

The forum's topic surrounded Collaboration. Each representative talked about their view of the current state in Queensland and how the future looks. Topics covered included the management and integration challenges of cloud technology, the integration of electronic medical records, the future challenges and opportunities of the operations of health organisations, and more.

OCTOBER 2015

Alastair Sharman
Chief Information Officer
Children's Health QLD

David Willock
eHealth Program Director
Cairns HHS

Cairns Hospital has been rolling out the integrated electronic Medical Record program. David discussed the benefits & importance of the program, and offered insights into the change impact of a digital upgrade. He explained the importance of understanding the process from both a technical and clinical perspective.

Alastair gave an overview of ICT initiatives at the Lady Cilento Hospital, along with a summary of digital engagement and how it contributes to healthcare. Alastair's passion for healthcare advancement was prevalent, especially in relation to a children-only hospital.

MAY 2016

Nasa Walton
Chief Information Officer
West Moreton Hospital

André Snoxall
Program Director
Queensland Health

West Moreton Hospital embarked on a Print & Imaging program, with Fuji Xerox. Nasa discussed the challenges & benefits of the service. Through it, clinical risk is minimised by printing instead of handwriting arm bands; printing productivity & security are improved by using follow me printing; and the space required by 430+ devices is reduced.

André provided a comparison between the UK and USA health systems, having worked within both. He detailed the hard lessons learnt during his time in the UK, and his actions to overcome the challenges with large software implementations.
